

Andrew Woodhead
Kit Store Technician

I came to Brathay after spending three years studying for a degree in Outdoor Studies.

At the interview the place had a very friendly and relaxed feeling, with everybody being very welcoming and supportive. When I was offered the job I was thrilled; I knew that this was the place for me.

Since joining I have enjoyed every working day. The job is great for meeting new people, the diverse range of clients coming in means that no two days are the same. Many groups pop up to the stores to get kitted out, and this also provides a hub for the technicians and associates running the courses to meet, catch up and prepare for their course.

Being in charge of the stores brings with it a range of challenges; from sourcing specialised equipment at the last minute to managing the budget so the kit we have is of the highest standard.
